

Workshop “Voice and Language: How to communicate more easily and effectively”

Scope

In academia we are constantly required to speak with and in front of people. These situations can be challenging not just in terms of content but also vocally.

With a little practice it is possible to construct precise formulations, have a well-trained and strong voice with clear diction and modulation. This allows you to attend conferences and seminars well-armed to make your presentations and contributions more effective and to deal with critical situations calmly.
